

Core Training in Intensive Short-Term Dynamic Psychotherapy (ISTDP)

With

Dr Stephen Buller & Dr Susan Hajkowski

An Evidence-Based Short-Term Psychodynamic Psychotherapy

City of Derby, UK

Introduction

We are pleased to offer an IEDTA certified, in-person, intensive, Core Training for clinicians who are ambitious to gain and develop competence at an advanced level to achieve effective results across the spectrum of problems and disorders that arrive in our clinic rooms.

ISTDP is an experiential therapy which takes place in the intimate immediacy of the interaction between patient and therapist - in the clinic room, in the here-and-now. Our aim is that events and workshops comprising the training will have the same learning immediacy, with us all in one space, in a venue close to the City Centre in Derby, UK. The City of Derby is a central location in the UK, and it is well-served with excellent transport links. Road, rail, and airports ensure that our training venues are easily accessible within the UK, from Europe, and across other international centres.

We deliver a three-year Core Training in Intensive Short-Term Dynamic Psychotherapy (ISTDP). This Core Training is a radical programme of training, education, and development in ISTDP within a framework of evidence-based Short-Term Psychodynamic Psychotherapy (STPP). It is part of a commitment to the provision of advanced courses to enable clinicians to develop high levels of competence in evidence-based treatments.

Our Core Training is a comprehensive programme and a collegiate learning environment where rigorous clinical and theoretical learning can take place. The training is built upon an extensive theoretical and technical syllabus. Important training elements are integrated into the programme, including the use of routine outcome measures for outcome monitored treatments, and video-based assessments of practice. We value collaboration in training and invite other highly specialist ISTDP trainers to periodically take part in training delivery to encourage a range of learning and provide critical comparison in theory and technique.

Programme Content and Supported Development

Core Training is built around six core modules undertaken over three years. These six core modules provide the substance of training in ISTDP and evidence based STPP. Modules are delivered through Clinical Development Workshops and Supervision Workshops and are supported by regular clinical supervision between workshops. An annual immersion event also forms an integral part of the programme. The programme follows international standards recognised by IEDTA, and as such is certified by IEDTA. A full, certified training can be undertaken over a period of three years, depending on previous training and experience. Primary and access modules are available in preparation for core modules if required. Optional and additional modules and workshops providing support for the core modules for extended learning are also possible. The programme is IEDTA certified, and progress is being made to achieve UK based professional certification.

Lead Trainers

Stephen Buller and Susan Hajkowski hold core professional qualifications in mental health, psychoanalytic and psychodynamic psychotherapy. They are IEDTA certified teachers and supervisors and have extensive knowledge and experience in applications of ISTDP to a wide range of patient populations and clinical contexts. Alongside this Stephen and Susan are committed researchers and undertake clinical research both in the process and outcome of treatment.

Participants

The Core Training programme is intended for health and social care professionals who have an interest in undertaking advanced clinical and theoretical training in ISTDP.

Applicants must hold a current professional health registration in their country of residence and be in good professional standing. Professional registration in psychotherapy or counselling is desirable but not essential. Prior knowledge, training, and experience in ISTDP is desirable but not essential.

Format of Training

The Core Training comprises six modules over three years, two modules each year. Modules comprise of two three-day workshops. Each three-day workshop is composed of a one-day Clinical Development Workshop and a two-day Supervision Workshop. In addition, modules are supported by an annual three-day immersion course. This immersion course includes theoretical, experiential, and supervision workshops. Additional clinical supervision between workshops is required.

Clinical Development Workshops include theoretical and clinical teaching and will include guest specialist ISTDP trainers. Supervision Workshops include theoretical and clinical teaching, and the delivery of video-based clinical supervision to trainees in a group format. A yearly three-day immersion training is integrated into the programme to provide intensive teaching and training. An aim is to extend the range of teaching by invited, highly specialist guest trainers to present alongside local lead trainers.

Learning Objectives

The objectives of the core training are:

- To provide a thorough education in Intensive Short-Term Dynamic Psychotherapy (ISTDP) within an Experiential Dynamic Therapy (EDT) context.
- To enable participants to achieve excellence in their ability to apply ISTDP with a diverse population of patients.
- To provide participants with the most up to date knowledge and understanding of ISTDP and EDT theory, clinical applications, and research.
- To welcome participants into a peer network that values dialogue and collaboration amongst the EDTs.
- To cultivate a collegial, professional, and encouraging learning environment that is respectful, diverse and positive for participants.

Teaching and Learning Strategies

Core training fundamentals include:

- Analysing video-recorded clinical cases presented by teachers and trainees
- Role-playing and other active learning techniques
- Studying video-recorded cases representing increasing levels of complexity
- Individual supervision, at least some of which must occur in a group setting
- Interactive lectures
